POGLEDI / ISKUSTVA

Jehiel Bar-Hajim je direktor JOINT-a za zemlje bivše Jugoslavije, Češku Republiku, Alžir i Tunis. SaLon je zamolio Jehielu da podijeli sa nama svoje videnje o nekim aspektima teškog zadatka kome se tako predano posvetio. Odazvao je spretno.

DOBROČINSTVO JE NAŠ ZADNJI IZBOR EKSPERIMENTI JOINTA U SOCIJALNOM PODUZETNIŠTVU

Prema Maimonidesu:

Najviša forma dobročinstva je da se pruži podrška osobi prije nego što osiromaši tako da mu se na dostojan način ponudi značajan poklon, da mu se ponudi pogodan zajam, da mu se pomogne da nade zaposlenje ili da se snade u poslovima, tako da nema potrebe da ovisi o drugima.

Ako se pažljivo pogleda u cijelokupne Maimonidesove "Ljestve dobročinstva" (ima osam nivoa), čini se da je rukovodeći princip: Pruži pomoć; sačuvaj dostojarstvo.

Kako primjeniti te davnjašnje principe na svijet 21.-og stoljeća?

Mi koji se bavimo danas humanitarnom pomoći, suočeni smo sa dilemom.

Sa jedne strane insistiramo na jednakim ljudskim pravima za sve kao geslo socijalne pravde, pravima koja ne uzimaju obzir bilo kakav fizički, mentalni ili socijalni hendikep ili manu.

S druge strane, mi – naše organizacije i oni sa kojim radimo – suviše često ovisimo o opštem dobročinstvu. Bez vlastitih neovisnih izvora, ostajemo u zavisnosti od velikodušnosti drugih. U modernom svjetovnom društву, dobročinstvo se cijeni kao čin slobodne volje, odluka koju neovisno donosi pojedinac, dakle, izraz osobnog smisla za samilost. Dobročinstvo više nije, kao u Maimonidesovu dobu, neporečiva obaveza svih koji su u mogućnosti da daju, obaveza koju su morali poštovati i najsiromašniji članovi zajednice.

Na našu žalost, shvatili smo što više, da se zahtjev za jednaka prava ponekad iznosi u okolnostima ekonomске zavisnosti. Suvise često se oni koji navise trebaju, nadu u nepriјatnoj situaciji da mole (da ne kažemo prose) druge da prihvate, ponekad mimo njihove volje, relacije međusobnog poštovanja i solidarnosti. Koliku putu moramo praviti kompromise na račun dignitetu da bi osigurali pomoć?

Moramo li zauvijek živjeti sa ovom dilemom? Ne postoji li bolji put?

U potrazi za odgovarajućim, alternativnim načinom da se pomogne, mnogi od nas su eksperimentisali sa projektima zapošljavanja koji su donosili prihode.

Za mene, sve je krenulo u Makarskoj. Tamo smo, Jevrejima koji su izbjegli rat u Bosni i koje je JOINT pomogao i sklonio duž dalmatinske obale, dali mogućnost da zarade džeparac pletući Kipot, koje smo pokušali prodati širom svijeta.

U novije vrijeme, odlučili smo platići grupi sposobnih ljudi ali bez sredstava, da obezbjede robu i usluge drugoj grupi neprozvodnih ljudi. Primjeru radi, JOINT je u saradnji sa "La Benevolencijom" kupio specijalne džempere (zvane "Bader jakne"). Ove su isplieli preligraci u Centru za samopouzdanje u Sarajevu a razdjeljeni su starijim osobama koji su vezani za kuću i žiteljima dobrovratnih institucija širom svijeta.

U Srbiji, nedaleko Beograda, kupili smo drveni namještaj proizveden u radionici jednog doma za mentalno hendikepirane odrasle i njime opremili sličnu instituciju, ali za djecu. Imo mnogo drugih primjera.

Na osnovu ovog raznovrsnog i geografski razasutog iskustva, dosli smo konačno do zaključka, da ovi pokušaji treba da prerastu u širu, dinamičniju strategiju.

No, ključno pitanje je i dalje pred nama:

Kako, kao ne-profitna organizacija, možemo pomoći invalidima i hendikepiranim da zarade za život?

Sa ovim ciljem pred očima, prošlog juna JOINT i "La Benevolencija" su u Sarajevu lansirali "Fond J". Fond J je specijalni, bezkamatni obtinjni zajam, posebno kreiran za one NGO, (nevladine, ne-profitne) organizacije koje su u stanju da posude ovaj novac i koriste ga za razvoj korisnih poslova za ljude sa manama i hendikepirane.

U lansiranju ovog programa "zajmovi za poslove" uživali smo snažnu i trajnu podršku i ohrabrenje od neuobičajenog filantropa, Dr. Alfreda Badera iz Milvokija, Viskonsin. Do sada je velikodušno poklonio Fondu J, sumu od $ 200.000.

Ulazak u zajam, ipak, nije rezultirao ranije, niti će sada, niti može rezultirati istim entuzijazmom među korisnicima, kao sto bi to bilo sa novim uručivanjem dobročinog davanja. Već kod samog podnošenja zahtjeva za zajam, mora se prihvati zahtjevni, odrasli jezik odgovornosti. Umjesto apele "Molim pomožite", koji se može izraziti na mnogo obavežujućih načina, mora se početi razgovarati o: "planiranju; strategiji; marginalnim troškovima; profit i gubitak; povrat investicija; dugoročni proizvodni ciljevi."

Za mnoge nevladine organizacije koje rade sa invalidima i hendikepiranima ovaj poslovni glosar može predstavljati novi – a ponekad prijetljivi – riječnik. I zaista, prihvatanje novac koji treba vremenom vratiti, zahtjeva često nadprosječan talent, obavezu i odlučnost. To zahtjeva također spremnost da se prihvati i nosi sa nesigurnošću i neizvjesnošću - posljednje što bi neko sa invaliditetom poželio. Kroz Fond J a primjenom filozofije socijalnog preduzetništva, mi istovremeno uvodimo koncept rizika i napetosti otvorenog tržišta u često zaštićeni svijet inicijativa za zapošljavanje invalida.

Pomažući Nevladnim organizacijama da razvijaju realne i profesionalne poslovne planove, omogućavajući hendikepiranim i drugim nemocnim pojedincima da se takmiče sa ostalima u skoro istovjetnim uslovima, mi želimo svima ukazati na raspon i vrijednost mogućnosti, koje su sada na sporednom kolosjeku.

Ne možemo očekivati da će "naše Nevladine organizacije" biti imune na poslovni neuspjeh. Može se reći da se program ne može smatrati uspješnim, ukoliko i dok se ne desi prvi zajmovni neuspjeh. Ako hoćemo da slavimo preuzimanje rizika, moramo biti spremni da platimo i cijenu.

Čemu, onda težimo? Prijе svega, stvaramo izazov za sebe i potencijalne partnerke u ovim raznim humanitarnim poduhvatima. Ako razmišljamo o dobročinstvu kao prostom poklanjanju novca, onda neka "dobročinstvo bude naš zadnji izbor" i kad god i gdje god nam je moguće, neka umjesto toga, postanemo potpuno razvijeni socijalni poduzetnici.

Mjenjajući prirodu vlastitog učesnika mi možemo utjecati na karakter rješenja. Time možemo omogućiti invalidima i hendikepiranima da "zarade" jednake prava koje im naša društva ponekad nevoljko daju.

Ulazeći u partnerstvo sa siromašnim i invalidima kako bi im pomogli da se uzdignu iznad tog i takvog stanja, možda uspijemo pružiti pomoć i promovisati dostojarstvo u isto vrijeme. Na ovaj način nastojimo dostići najviši stepen Maimonidesovih "Ljestava dobročinstva"

CHARITY IS OUR LAST CHOICE

JDC'S EXPERIMENTS IN SOCIAL ENTREPRENEURSHIP

According to Maimonides:

The highest form of charity is to help sustain a person before he becomes impoverished by offering a substantial gift in a dignified manner, or by extending a suitable loan, or by helping him find employment or establish himself in business so as to make it unnecessary for him to become dependent on others.

If one looks carefully at Maimonides entire "Ladder of Tzedaka" (there are eight levels), the guiding principle would seem to be the following: Provide help; Preserve dignity.

How do we apply such time-honored principles in the world of the 21st century?

We who are involved in humanitarian aid today face a dilemma.

On the one hand we insist on equal human rights for all as a matter of social justice, rights that take no notice of any physical, mental, or social handicap or disadvantage.

On the other hand we - our organizations and those with whom we work - depend all too often on public charity. Without independent resources of our own, we end up relying on the generosity of others. And in the modern secular world, charity is seen as an act of free will, a decision made independently by each and every individual, an expression of their some personal sense of mercy. It is no longer, as it was in the days of Maimonides, the incontrovertible obligation of all who have the means to give, a demand made even of the poorest members of the society.

We have learned, moreover, to our sorrow that the demand for equal rights can sometimes sit uncomfortably with a situation of economic dependency. Too often those most in need end up in the awkward position of having to petition (not to say beg) others to accept -- somewhat against their will -- an agenda of mutual respect and solidarity. How often are we forced to compromise on the question of dignity to obtain assistance?

BORIŠA RISTIĆ

Are we obliged to live forever with this dilemma? Is there no better way?

In searching for an appropriate, alternative way to help the disabled, many of us have experimented with income-generating employment projects.

For me it all started in Makarska, Croatia where we gave Jews who had escaped from the war in Bosnia and whom the JOINT was supporting and sheltering along the Dalmatian Coast an opportunity to earn pocket money by crocheting kippot and then trying to sell them around the world.

More recently we decided to pay one set of needy but capable individuals to provide goods or services for a second but non-productive population without means. For example, in cooperation with La Benevolencija, the JOINT purchased special sweaters (called "Bader Vests"). These were knitted by paraplegics at the Center for Self-Reliance in Sarajevo and then distributed to home-bound elderly and residents living in welfare institutions throughout the country.

In Serbia, not far from Belgrade, we bought wooden furniture constructed at the carpentry shop in one home for mentally handicapped adults in order to equip another such institution, this one for children.

There are many other examples as well.

Out of this diverse and geographically scattered experience, we finally reached the conclusion that these experiments needed to be part of a broader, more dynamic strategy.

The key question, however, still lay before us:

How can we as a non-profit organization help those who are disabled or disadvantaged earn a living?

With this goal in mind, therefore, the JOINT and La Benevolencija launched last June in Sarajevo "The J-Fund". The J-Fund is a special, non-interest-bearing, revolving loan fund created in particular for those NGO's (non-governmental, non-profit organizations) capable of borrowing this money and using it to develop sustainable jobs for the disabled and/or the disadvantaged.

In launching this program of "loans for jobs" we have had the strong and constant support and encouragement of an unusual philanthropist Dr. Alfred Bader of Milwaukee, Wisconsin. So far he has generously donated to The J-Fund a total of $200,000.

Starting a loan fund, however, cannot, does not, and indeed has not generated quite the same enthusiasm among its would-be beneficiaries as would announcing a new round of charitable grants. Even to apply for a loan means one has to adopt the demanding, adult language of responsibility. Instead of pleading "Please help" in all the many ways that compelling appeal can be voiced, one has to begin to talk:

"Planning; Strategy; Marginal Costs; Profit and Loss; Returns on Investment; Long-Term Performance Goals".

For many NGO's dealing with the disabled or the disadvantaged this business glossary can represent a new --- and sometimes daunting --- vocabulary.

Indeed, accepting money in order to repay it over time requires a frequently uncommon level of talent, commitment, and determination. It also demands a readiness to accept and cope with insecurity and uncertainty, the last thing anyone with a disability is looking for. Through The J-Fund and by applying the philosophy of social entrepreneurship we are introducing both the concept of risk and the tensions of the open marketplace into the often-protected world of employment initiatives for the disabled.

By assisting NGO's to develop realistic and professional business plans, by enabling handicapped and otherwise disadvantaged individuals to compete on nearly the same terms as anyone else, we hope to demonstrate for all to see the scope and the value of the abilities now being left by the wayside.

We cannot expect "our NGO's" to be immune from business failure. Indeed the program will not be counted a success unless and until it has its first loan failure. If we are to celebrate risk-taking, we have to be ready to pay that price.

So what then are we aiming for? First we want to challenge ourselves and our potential partners in these various humanitarian endeavors. If we think of "charity" as simply giving away money, then

Let's make "charity our last choice", and whenever and wherever we can become instead full-fledged social entrepreneurs.

By changing the nature of our own involvement, we can also influence the character of the solution. We can thereby enable the disabled and the disadvantaged to earn the equal rights sometimes our societies begrudge them.

By partnering with the poor and the disabled to help them rise above that condition, we might just end up providing help and promoting dignity at the same time. In this way we aim to reach the highest rung on Maimonides' "Ladder of Tzedaka".

Naravno da je dobru zaledinu za ovakve "avanture" imao u činjenici da je Olivera već radila solidan posao, ali isto tako, presudno je bilo njegovo shvatanje da ne treba biti zadovoljan postignutim već da uvijek treba osmisljavati novo i više.

U međuvremenu, proteklo je više od jedne decenije. Otac koji se nije tužio i tvrdio da mu je dobro ali da nije sretan, napustio je familiju zauvijek. Posljedice, majci, koja je sve stojički podnosiла, trelalo je pokušati nadoknaditi sve izgubljeno, a naročito životog druga. Trebalо je u novim okolnostima, zaštitići, usmjeriti i ohrabriti sina Ognjena koji je od plašljivog dječara dogurao do fakulteta. Sva je sreća da je familija, uža i šira, unatoč svim nedacama uspjela ostati na okupu i hraniti se na medusobnom potporu.

Kako Boriša definisce stanje u kome se našao. On misli da je dobro što je došao ovamo. Kaže u šali da je išao ulicama i zahvaljuvao Slobi, Tučku i Alji što su ga ovame liferivali. Rekli smo da je borac. Sve je bilo izazov, unatoč preprekama. To što je srce malo "zatrotkiralо" kao posljedica traume, stresa i posebnih napora vidi kao sporedni efekat ali ne i kao zapreku. Danas radi sa voljom i umijećem sa grupom ljudi, uglavnom mlađih, i, pogodili ste, svi su "odande", dakle, može sa ponosom reći da obezbijeduje posao i jednom broju drugih familija.

Ne krije Boriša da misli da je u domovini postigao više nego ovdje. Prekid ga je unazadio ali nije bacio na koljenja. Izgubljeno je nemoguće nadoknaditi, sve je novi početak, ali čini sve da bude bolje nego što je.

Od kako ga je napustio, nikada nije navratio u Sarajevo. Nema, kaže, ni želju za tim ponovnim susretom. Isuviše je, a i dalje pogoden gubitkom onoga što je najviše volio, cijenio i vjerovao u tom svom bivšem životu. On zna da je zauvijek nestao onaj osjećaj prisnosti, prijateljstva, zajedničkog života bez granica u kome se jednako osjećao kod kuće u Zajecaru, Bitolji ili Tuzli, u kome je Sarajevo nosilo barjak međusobne tolerancije.

Uimalo da zaboravimo. Nikad i nikad neće zaboraviti što mu je pružila ovde Jevrejska zajednica. Pri tom ne bi da izdvaja nikoga i zato ostaje pri izrazu Jevrejska zajednica, kao opšti pojam. Tako velikodušnu, nesebično i pravovremenu pomoć nije očekivao ni od roda najbližega.

Eto vam male priče o Boriši Ristiću i njegovima u ovim namrogdenim godinama. Nije moglo stati u manje prostora, a ima mnogo više da se kaže.

Branko Danon

BORIŠA RISTIĆ

Many thoughts are on Boriša's mind, the leading one in his life though being: „In order to create better living conditions here and now one should work harder, better with more creativity. It does not appeal to me to be in paid employment striving to save enough and therefore depriving myself of many things. A man should not get into a shell and restrict himself.”

And this is why we think you should meet him.

Boriša Ristić has just celebrated his 46th birthday. He was born in Sarajevo on 22nd of July 1960. After completing his Electric Engineering College education he started his career as a designer in Petrolinvest following which he set into the uncertainties of private business. At first it was a video cassette lending and recording studio and later he moved on to export/import ventures until ...1992. That was the end to a challenging but undisturbed path towards a comfortable life in peace, among friends, where he enjoyed the familiar and understandable environment. At least, he thought so. Like most of us, it seems.

Like most of us, Boriša also goes through that dark, dramatic part of his life in a way comparable to a plane entering turbulences when flying above Alps.

The Children Embassy helps him to send ("provisionally" as they believed at that time) his wife Olivera and son Ognjen to Stanici near Omiš. With his parents Paula and Andelko he gets to Makarska in a convoy, while his sister Biljana returning from Israel gets to Belgrade and finally with some difficulties to Makarska. During that extraordinary period Boriša was incited to leave - by his business. Namely, trying to finalize some transactions he had to leave Sarajevo. His emotions and his perception were defined by an event he witnessed during that trip. In a place called Kiselojeb he saw the Serb and the Croat soldiers, both of which seized and choked Sarajevo, playing together a football match. He understood: "that it was criminal business and not confrontation of nationalistic ideals". In a moment he understood with anguish that he does not wish or intend to go back. This decision and destiny brought him to England. Why to England one might ask. "Because that was the only option offered to us by Dragan Danon on behalf of La Benevolencia at that time. I accepted it immediately not contemplating or postponing too much my resolution." That is how Boriša, his wife and his son got to England early in November 1992. His parents who had decided to wait for their daughter Biljana, had complications due to introduction of visas, and managed to reach England only in spring the following year. Biljana arrived as late as autumn 1994. Happy end? No, it was just a new beginning. Even this fighter did not escape the initial troubles encountered by all refugees. But being a fighter Boriša was not to be disrupted for too long. Following the English language courses he took courses in marketing and business studies, authenticated his Sarajevo education diploma and was qualified for electric installations testing. He "armed" himself by this useful knowledge before he started working but also during the period of his initial employments. That is how he started his new fight. In order to gain new experiences, improve his English and get local references and independence from state support he started volunteering. Simultaneously with Olivera he started working for the United Synagogue. This lasted for four years. The real meaning of what was said at the beginning is becoming clear now. Not submitting to the situation he was in he takes his first mortgage loan to buy a flat and as he did not have sufficient funds he refurbished it on his own. Two years later he gets into a second mortgage which makes him understand that he has sufficient energy and undoubted talent to engage himself in civil engineering and refurbishment for his own needs (it became clear that it was much cheaper for him to build than to work in an office and pay somebody else) and as a career - for others. This is the very reason why SalOn editorial board has decided to present Boriša to its readers. He was the first of the newcomers to England who had the courage, persistence and the skills to become independent and take upon himself complete responsibility for his and his family well-being. It is true that the fact the Olivera was already in solid employment was a good backing for such "adventures", but the deciding factor was his understanding that one should not be content with the achieved but always strive for something new and better.

More than a decade passed by. His father who never complained and maintained that he felt well but not happy, left the family for ever. As a consequence an effort had to be made to make up for all the losses and especially for her lifelong partner to his stoical mother. In these new circumstances it was necessary to guide their son Ognjen, then a shy little boy who is at university now. Despite all the troubles, the whole family - the immediate and the wider one - stood together supporting one another all the time.

Looking back Boriša believes that it was good for him to get here. Jokingly he says that walking the streets at that time he would thank Slobodan, Tuđman and Alija for sending him here. We already have mentioned that he is a fighter. Everything was a challenge notwithstanding the obstacles. He considers the reality that his heart "stammered" a bit as the result of the trauma, stress and extraordinary circumstances to be a side-effect, not a hindrance. He works today enthusiastically and skilfully with a group of people, most of them young, and as you have guessed correctly all of them "from over there", thus he can maintain with pride that he ensures income to a number of other families.

Boriša does not hide that he thinks that he had achieved more in his homeland than here. The interruption held him back but did not force him to his knees. What was lost cannot be compensated; with this new beginning he is doing his best to make things better than they are now.

From the time he left it, Boriša never went back to Sarajevo. He does not have a desire for this new encounter. He still feels too strongly about the loss of all the values he loved so much and believed in during his former life. He knows that there is no more feeling of closeness, friendship, limitless life together; where he felt at home whether at Zajecar, Bitolja, Tuzla; where Sarajevo was the standard-bearer of mutual tolerance.

We have to mention also that he will never forget all the support he had here from the Jewish community. He would not like to single out anybody - that is why he uses the Jewish community as general term. He would not expect such generous and timely help even from his nearest relatives.

This is the story of Boriša Ristić and his family during these gloomy years. It could not fit in less space, but there is so much more to be said.

SKYPE EXPRESS

Sinoć sam bio u Lili Hameru, Norveška. Večeras odoh u Okland, Novi Zeland i Melburn, Australija. Prijе puta nikada ne pakujem kofer, ne nosim pasoš, lov, kartice. Naјvažnije je da kosu dobro rasporedim, brkove namjestim i pokušam izgledati što mirnije, veselije. Onda pripazim šta gore da obučem. Nije dobro svakog puta biti u istoj majici, košulji. A i pozadinu je važna. Neće valjda uvijek biti isto cvijeće, slika. Ponekad za promjenu stavim koju svijeću, ukrasim tanjur... Za donji dio tijela nema frke. Mogu poderane farmerice, kratke hlače, ionako to na mom putovanju niko ne primjeće. Dva, tri gultljiva džusa, ili nečeg oštijeg i ja sam spremjan kao zapeta, uzbudena puška... A kako je bilo u Lili Hameru?! U tom olimpijskom gradiću dočekao me je moj jaran Mimo Bešlić. Izdržao je cijeli rat u Sarajevu, pa onda godinu i po u mri i onda mu sve puklo. Kaže bili mu teže nego od 92. do 95. Spakovao kofer i kremuo stopama svog rahmetli oca. Mimino su starog, za onog rata, nijemci imterirali u hladnu Norvešku. Preživio je valjalujući pomoći dobrih, toplih ljudi iz Polarnog kruga. Poslijе kada se vratio kući decenijama je vodio Društvo Jugoslovensko-Norveškog prijateljstva. Mimino starom je bilo lakše. Započeo je krug koji mu je sin zatvorio. Otac se vratio u Sarajevo da započne život, a Mimo je došao u Lili Hameru da nastavi život.

- Stani, ba, Paja. Smanji malo te tvoje zvučnike, pojačaj svjetlo. Da te bolje čujem i vidim. Taaako, sada je dobro! Vidis li šta držim u ruci? Čaša crnog vina, valja mi nazdraviti našem susretu nakon 15 godina. Daj naspi i ti, pa da se kucnemo o oko kamere. Važi?

Hvatam bocu crnogorskog Vranca, kupio ga u dućanu kod Damira Džanovačića, što nam ovdje u Holandiji u svom granapu pravi ugodaj kao da smo u samoposluzi kod Sune ma Marijin Dvor.

- Hajde Mimo, vozdra i živo!

U Oklandu, Novi Zeland, Vedrana, razredna drugarica iz OŠ "Slaviša Vajner Čića". Početkom 94. nekako se dokopala daleke zemlje. Izgubila je sve, čak i mali život koji je nosila u sebi. Godinama je pokušavala da mužu daruje potomke, ali nije islo. Zato mi sada ponosno pokazuje fotografiju, crnokosog dječačića:

- Evo mi sina! Šta misliš odakle dolazi? Iz našeg Sarajeva, iz jednog doma za nezbrinutu djecu. Ma, ima ovdje da ga zbrinemo kao nikoga. Daču mu svu moju ljubav. Njemu, meni, te mom češku, dolaze najljepše godine nakon decenija tuge.

Od Oklanda do Melburna, Australija, za nekoliko minuta Skype expresom. Kod koga prije?! Im raje ka nekada na Korzu kod Parkuše. Lovim Dragana Macanovića Macu. Uputio me na njega, prije nekoliko dana, dok sam bio u Las Vegasu, moj jaran, Slobodan Vidović Guz, najpoznatiji sarajevski restoranSKI pjevač. Surset s Guzom je bio poseban. On je tada zagrizao gitaru, prihvatio se mikrofona i zapjevao neke naše stare pjesme. Hvali se kako mu je nedavno gostima bio i de Kemal Hanjalić, moj komisija iz Holandije, nekadašnji gradonačelnik Šehera. Pjevali su, kaže, do zore i plakali. Suze su lili ne od tuge, nego od radoši što godine i hiljadu kilometara ne mogu ništa sarajevskom duhu.

A i Maca je posebni izbor sarajevske osobnosti u Australiji. Okuplja raju, pjeva im, recituje, unosi nadu da čemo sv opet biti zajedno.

- Lako ti je Maca da ih foliraš, dok imaš Skype dobacujem mu. – Ne znam, ko je ovo skont'o, ali za sve je zaslužan jaro Bil Gejts. Želim mu da do groba bude najbogatiji hadžija na svijetu.

Jer, de imo ovo? Sjediš u svojoj izgubljenosti, a s tobom svu tvoji drugari, s tobom prividnost, opsjenost mirisa Kvarnera, Parkuše, Sloge, Kluba novinaru, Sirana, Zvuci Indexa, Vokinsa, Kodexa. Pimpeka dok svećano najavljuje: A sada dame biraju... I sjećanje da nikada nisam bio izabran.

Turistički vodič na mojim svjetskim putovanjima, gospone Skype, ponovo zvoni. Ovog puta veliki istovremeni susret s Nerkom u Kanadi, Zokom u Hjoustonu, Jo Delićem i njegovom Sladjom u holandskom Tilburgu, s Čoletom u Sarajevu.

- Joj, raja, da vidite kako je Vilsonova ozelenilo. A Miljaka nadošla, baš kao nekada kada smo se kupali kod slapova kod Vojničkog mosta. Znate tamo gdje je Keko, što je danas negdje u Australiji, loveći ribu, ispod kamenja uzviknuo da je čopio najvećeg klenja. Kada ga je izvadio u rukama mu se uvijala najveća bjelouška što smo je vidjeli u najljepšoj rijeci naše mladosti.

- Ma, daj, ba, Čole ne vadi nam frēu s tim Vilsonovim. Ima i ovdje zelenila.

- Ima, ima, ali nigdje nije tako zeleno kao ovdje.

- Stani, ba, nećemo politike!

- Ma, kakva politika. Nisam ja kriv što se neki boje spominjati neke boje...

Poslije ovog skupa, novi susret s Nećom Delićem. Vadi mi zazubice.

- Vidi Paja, šta kažeš. Valjli li?

Unjeo mi u kamjeru dobro prošaranu govedju pečenici. Donijela Majka prijatelja Brune. Ravno iz Bosne pred okom Delićeve kamere. Da puknem od muke, Čini mi da osjetim miris sušenog mesa, da osjećam slast bjele masnoće. Zagrizao bih ekran.

- A, ovo – nastavlja Nećko mučenje! Vadi komad travničkog sira i ponosno se šepuri pred kamerom. Prekidam vezu. Bolje je za moje žive i moj appetit. Čekam da mi se javi stari drugar Josip Cico Kabiljo iz Kanade. Proteklih godina Cico se šetao raznim zemljama, kontinentima. Posjećivao staru raju. Obnavljao veze. Bio je preteča ovog Skypa. Našao je u Las Vegasu Žiju, Čapu, u Los Andjelosu Mikiju, Lisicu, u Francuskoj Ranku, Božu, u Njemačkoj Hasana, u Kanadi Zaima. Sve staru raju rašira Spomenika u Starim paviljonima, kod današnje Skupštine BiH, u epicentru Sarajeva...

I zahvaljujući Cici evo mene medju svoje čak u čovenom L.A.Tu se ugnjezdio moj najblizi drug iz djetinjstva Željko Čapalik, prijernati gazda čuvenog sarajevskog Bel Amija". Sjećam se kako se godinama prenamenjeno mjerilo koliko je porastao. Sada je tu u L.A. za mnoge Mario

- Ma, kada me zovu kao da im se jezik lomi. Ovako je super i njima i meni. Ispunio mi se davni san da se zovem Mario.

A neće da mi kaže kako mi se ispunjavaju divni sni sa sinovima. Jedan je tenis zamjenio glumom. Već se nalazi na špicama najnovijih holivudske celulodnih proizvoda, a drugi se bori sa moćnim Microsoftom. Mlađi Čapalik lansira svoj jedinstveni kompjuterski program za zaštitu elektronskih podataka. Tvrdi da ga ni najbolji krakeri neće moći "lomit" kako sada čine sa najpoznatijim softverskim programima... Željko, pardon Mario, je svake subote na kavi s Farukom, Mijkom Gutijem, mojim drugom iz djetinjstva, dva sprata iznad mene, a pred rat i rediteljem mojih TV emisija na SA 3.

- On ti ovdje krije da je bio TV reditelj – javlja mi Čapa putem Skypa. –Kako da to kaže čuvenom Harisonu Fordu, kojem je kompletno iznutra opremio privatni mlazni avion. Da vidiš šta mu je sva ugradio. Ne možeš vjerovati, Šta je sve u stanju. Ima posla preko glave. Otkrio Miki u petoj deceniji da je genije za izvodjenje enterijera u, što bi se reklo, vadžušnim prometlima...

Evo ga Malme, Švedska. Dok čekam da na ekranu vidim mog Davora Papića, urednika u nekadašnjoj izdavačkoj kući "Masleša", prisjećam se naših dječačkih setnji s njegovom pokojnim ocem Radivojem, koji je bio prvi glavni urednik sarajevskih "Večernjih novina". Čekali bi ga tako uveće pred Redakcijom i onda u suton dana šetali cirkon prugom od padina iznad Soukbunara do naše Vrbanje, ili do Jevrejskog groblja.

Divili bi se tada svjetlosti grada u dolini, koju je presjecala Miljacka. Davorov tata govorio bi po ko zna koji put:

- Djeco vidite ovaj lijepi grad pod nama. To je mjesto iz kojeg nikada ne treba otići!

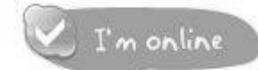

Ponovo zvonjava na mom PC. Putem Skype u goste mi stiže moj Hasan Pašović, iz njemačkog Esena. Posljednjih mjeseci ima posla preko glave. Realizuje našu zajedničku ideju da okupimo raju iz Istarske ulice u Paviljona, koje su ograničavale ulice Račkog i Daničića, te Vilsonovo.

- Vozdra Paja! Evo mi se javio Nedžad «Bubo» Hasibović, naš drugar iz sarajevskog djetinjstva. Kaže da može pronaći koju sliku iz prošlosti. Tu je i Narcis Jugo. On ima još više slike. Mislim da će naš WEB o Istarsima/magarcima i Paviljonima supljim loncima biti sve bogatiji. Ponovo se okuplja raja koja se pred rat, ili kasnije, razišla. Sada smo svи na jednoj vezi.

Uh, umorih se od ovih putovanja. Srećom, sutra je ponedjeljak. Biću više na poslu nego pred PC. Zaboraviću na Skype, bar nekoliko sati. Onda ponovo uveče sa uzbudnjem, nestrljenjem trčati pred moju kamjeru, moj ekran.

Valja mi vidjeti draga lica, čuti njihov nikada zaboravljeni glas. Znam mnogi će mi reći, posebno oni iz Rajosa, lako je vama, vani, ne muće vas plate neispunjene mjesecima, djeca što sanju da pušnu preko čize, ulice na kojima sve manje susrećemo poznata lica. Sarajevo postaje sve manje što je nekada bilo. I šta da kažem. Hvatajte se ljudi Skypa, pobijedite sve ratove onih koji su ţeljeli i koji još uništavaju naše Rajosa. Samo smo zajedno jači. Nije ovo komunistička, tako mi Allaha i Boga, poručujem vam ja, ukleti nevjernik.

SKYPE EXPRESS

Last night I was in Lillehammer, Norway. Tonight I am going to Auckland, New Zealand and Melbourne, Australia. I need no luggage, passport, dough or cards on this trip. It is important to arrange my hair properly, to adjust the moustache and look as relaxed and happy as possible. I select carefully what to wear on the upper part of my body. One should not always be seen in the same shirt. The background is also important. It should not always be the same flower or painting. Occasionally for a change there is a candle or a decorative plate. No worry for the bottom part of the body. Old jeans or shorts will do – nobody notices that on my journeys. A sip of juice or of something stronger and I am ready and excited to go.

But first about my trip to Lillehammer. In that little Olympic town I was met by my buddy Mimo Bešić. He endured in Sarajevo all through the war and a year and a half into peace and then everything crashed. He said it was even worse than between 92 and 95. He packed his suitcases and followed the steps of his late father. During the previous war Mimo's late father was interned in cold Norway by Germans. He survived thanks to the help of the good, warm-hearted people from the polar circle. Later, coming back home, he led The Yugoslav-Norway Friendship Society. It was easier for Mimo's old man. He started the circle closed by his son. The father came to Sarajevo to start his life and Mimo came to Lillehammer to go on with his life.

Wait, Paya. Turn the speakers down and add some light. I want to hear and see you better. Yes, that's it. Can you see what am I holding in my hand? A glass of red wine to drink to our meeting after fifteen years. Pour a glass for yourself and let's touch the cameras. Agreed?

I reach for the bottle of red Montenegro Vranac bought in the shop of Damir Džamanović in which - here in Holland – we feel as if we were in Sune's shop at Marijin Dvor.

- Well, Mimo, here is to your health!

- To your health!

Now, in Auckland, New Zealand, it is Vedrana - a friend from primary school Slaviša Vajner Čića. She got somehow to that remote country early in 1994. She had lost everything, even the little life she carried in her body. For years she tried in vain to present her husband with heirs. Now, with pride, she shows a photograph of a dark-haired little boy:

- Look at my son! Where do you think he comes from? From our Sarajevo, from a Children's Home. He will be enjoying his life here like anybody. He will get all my love. After decades of sorrow the best years are coming to him, to me and to my hubby.

From Auckland to Melbourne, Australia in a few minutes by Skype Express. Where shall I go first? There are as many people here as once there were at the main spot on the promenade. I am trying to get hold of Dragan Macanović Maca. A few days ago while I was in Las Vegas my friend Slobodan Vidović Guž, the best restaurant singer Sarajevo had told me that he was here. The meeting with Guž was a special one. He took his guitar and started singing into the speaker some of our old songs. He boasted that he recently had had a visit from Dr Kemal Hanjalić, my neighbour from Holland, former mayor of our home town. He says that they were singing and crying into the morning. The tears they shed were not those of sorrow but of joy that even the long years and thousands of kilometres could not destroy the Sarajevo spirit.

Maca is a special source of Sarajevo distinction in Australia. He brings the friends together, sings to them and reads poetry giving thus reason for hope that we shall be together again.

-It is easy for you, Maca, to enchant them with your Skype at hand – I said – I do not know whose bright idea this was, but it is certain that all credits go to Bill Gates. May he be the richest man in the world to his death. This is really unbelievable! You sit in your misplacement but there with you are all your friends in the delusion of the smells in all Sarajevo barrooms: Kvarner, Parkusa, Sloga, Journalists Club, Cyrano; the sounds of Sarajevo music bands: Indexi, Vokins, Kodex; Pimpek's ceremonial voice announcing: Ladies choice... I remember that I was never chosen.

Mr. Skype, the tourist guide on my world journeys, rings again. This time it is a big concurrent gathering with Nerco in Canada, Zoka in Huston, Jo Delić and his Sladja in Tilburg, Holland and Čole in Sarajevo.

- Hi, pals, if you could only see how green Vilsonovo promenade is. Miljacka River has risen to the level it reached when we used to swim at the cascades by the Vojnički bridge. It is the place, if you remember, where Keko - who is somewhere in Australia now - catching fish under the rocks exclaimed that he snatched the largest chub. When he pulled it out, twisting in his hands was the largest water snake we ever saw in the most beautiful river of our youth.

-Well, Čole, why do you provoke us by stories about Vilsonovo promenade, as if it is not green over here.

-I know it is, but nowhere is it as green as it is here.

-Stop it, we do not want any politics!

-What politics. It is just that some people are shy of mentioning some colours.

After this gathering a new meeting with Nečko Delić. He placed water in my mouth:

-Look, Paya. What do you say? Is it good enough?

I could see in front of the camera a piece of first-rate seasoned beef rump, brought to him by his friend's Bruno mother. Directly from Bosnia and straight to the focus of Delić's camera. I turned green with envy. It seemed to me that I could sense the smell of dried meat and taste the sweetness of the white fat. I felt like biting into the screen.

-And what about this? Nečko goes on torturing me. He exposes proudly a piece of cheese from Travnik. I logged off. It is much better for my nerves and my appetite.

I wait to hear from my old friend Josip Cico Kabiljo from Canada. During the preceding years Cico used to wander through different countries and continents; visited his friends; restored relations. He preceded Skype. He found Žiža in Las Vegas, Miki and Lisac in Los Angeles, Ranko and Božo in France, Hasan in Germany, Zaim in Canada. All of them old friends from the Monument among the Old Pavilions, by the present B&H Assembly in the very heart of Sarajevo. ... Thanks to Cico I have come to visit my friends in legendary L.A. Željko Čapalik, my best childhood friend and pre-war owner of the famous Sarajevo Bel Ami Night Club, built his nest here. For years, I remember, he would compare his height to mine to see how much he had grown. Here in L.A. his name is Mario for many.

-When they pronounce my name it is as if their tongue is breaking. It is terrific like this both for them and for me. It has been my long-lasting wish to be called Mario.

He refuses to tell me, though, how his dreams about his sons come true. One of them replaced tennis with acting. The casts of the newest celluloid products already include his name. The other son is fighting the mighty Microsoft. Čapalik Jr. launches his unique computer programme for electronic data protection. It is maintained that even the best crackers will not be able to "break" him the way they do now with the best known software programmes. Every Saturday Željko, sorry - Mario has coffee with Faruk and Miki Gutić, my childhood friend who lived two floors above me and who was later directing my TV programmes on SA3.

-He hides here that he was a TV director - Čapa tells me through Skype – There is no way he can tell it to the celebrated Harrison Ford, the interior of whose private jet he completely fitted. If you could only see all the things he has incorporated there. You can't believe his abilities. He is overbooked. In his fifth decade Miki has discovered that he is a genius for interiors in air traffic.

Here is Malm , Sweden. While waiting to see on the screen Davor Papić, the former editor in Masleša publishing house I evoke our boyhood walks with his late father Radivoje, the first editor in chief of Sarajevo Večernje Novine paper. We would wait for him in the evenings and then walk along the narrow gauge railway from Soukobunar to our Vrbanja bridge or to the Jewish cemetery.

We would admire the town lights in the valley cut through by Miljacka river. Davor's father used to say:

-Children look at the pretty town down there. That is the place that one should never leave! I can hear the ringing on my PC again. My guest through Skype this time comes from Essen, Germany. My friend Hasan Pašović. Since recently he is a very busy man bringing to reality our joint idea to get together the gang from the Istarska Street and the Pavilions.

-Hi, there, Paya. I had a call from Nedžad "Bubo" Hasibović who told me that he could find some old photos. Narcis Jugo is also here. He has even more photographs. Our WEB site with "Donkeys" Istarska Street boys and "Empty Headed" Pavilion boys is ever increasing, it seems. The gang that had scattered before the war or later is coming together again. We are all connected now.

I am getting tired of these travels. Luckily it is Monday tomorrow I will spend more time working by the PC. I will forget about Skype, for a few hours at least. Than in the evening excited I will rush impatiently to my camera and screen to see the dear faces and hear the never forgotten voices. I know that many of you, especially those from Sarajevo will say that it is easy for those of us abroad - free of troubles about: unpaid salaries; children dreaming to cross the boundary lines; streets where the number of familiar faces is decreasing every day. All the time Sarajevo is becoming less the town we knew. Stick to Skype, is all I can say, defeat all the wars of those who wanted and are still destroying our Sarajevo. Only together are we stronger. This is not a communist slogan, I, the doomed unbeliever swear to God, and you should believe me.

LONDONSKI LAVIRINT

Desilo se da medju prvim, u januaru 1992 kobne godine, stignem sa porodicom u London, desilo se da sam znao nešto engleskog i desilo se da sam kao takav zatrebao WJR-u (World Jewish Relief) za prihvat "mojih", kojima se iz raznoraznih pobuda i razmišljanja učinilo da im je Engleska dobro riješenje trenutnih nedača. Kad kažemo trenutnih, obično mislimo na nešto će ubrzo proći, zar ne? Mislimo da ćemo ubrzo nastaviti gdje smo stali, gdje smo prekinuti. E, pa prošlo je, kako kome, ali ne brzo i svakako nismo nastavili tamo gdje smo stali.

Na aerodromu Hitrov dočekujem grupu. Stižu iz Beograda gdje ih je SJOJ (onaj sa novim značenjem) privremeno prihvatio. Odmah ih prepoznam, nikog lično, jer ih i ne znam. Prepoznam ih po ponašanju, po, kako bi Englezi rekli body language. Guraju aerodromska kolica, sa na brzini natpranim stvarima, koje su iz bog zna kojih razloga smatrali najneophodnijim i osvrću se unazad, uplašeno. Još ne mogu da vjeruju, da su upravo prešli preko Crvenog Mora i Sinajske Pustinje, da su došli do obecane zemlje i da im Faraon više ništa ne može. Upravo su, sa zakašnjenjem, jer je avgust, doživjeli svoj Pesah. A ne vjeruju, nevjernici.

Bila je to prva od mnogih grupa i pojedinaca koje sam dočekivao na aerodromu i svi su u dlaku radili isto. Za nekoliko mjeseci zajedničkog proživljavanja strahota stekli su zajedničke karakteristike, nepogrešive za dešifriranje. A samo pola godine ranije bili su tako različiti. Evo još jedne potvrde. Tadašnja direktorka WJR-ja imala je sastanak sa dvojicom naših lidera, Ivicom i Jakicom u Zagrebu. Kada su našli, iako ih prvi put u životu vidi, odmah ih je prepoznela. "Jedina dva džentlmena koji su se usred Zagreba kretala ledima uza zid", objasnila mi je.

Hoću da prenesem jednu malu opservaciju koju ne znam gdje da utkam, pa što ne bih baš ovdje. Jedno od pitanja koja su se ticala mog posla to vrijejme bilo je koliko je važno biti Jevreju u okolnostima u kojima se grupa našla. Recimo, baka po očevoj strani bila Jevrejka, Travničanka. E pa vidite, napravio sam mali neformalni test, upitao sam svoje sunarodnjake, šta za njih znači ova adresa u Sarajevu: Dobrovoljačka 83! Nikom ništa! A to je, znate, bivša adresa Jevrejske opštine u Sarajevu. Neki su tu bili po prvi puta kada su kretali u egzil! Gdje je poenta? U tome da ne treba postavljati suvišna pitanja u nevrijeme. Niko i nije, ni tamio ni ovdje. U tome je poenta. A meni, Jevrejinu, sreće "k'o kanta".

Meni su kao priučenom socijalnom radniku objasnili da naizgled neracionalno ponasanje pojedinaca nije ništa drugo do normalna reakcija na nenormalnu situaciju. Ima i nešto što se zove Sindrom post-traumatskog stresa. Mi smo neosporno u nenormalnoj situaciji. Na mojim redovnim obilascima da provjerim stanju i podjelim ohrabenje i džeparac, stižem i do jedne porodice iz Hrvatske. Došli su preko Beograda. Nakon treće sedmice, otac porodice neće više ni da mi vidi, i više sa vrha stepenice da se nosim, znate već gdje, jer gdje je više taj stan koji su mu obećali na odlasku iz Beograda! Normalno ponasanje u nenormalnoj situaciji. Pomišljam na njegov fantastični stan (ili možda vatu) tamo, u Hrvatskoj.

Otkako smo se obreli u ovaj moćnoj zemlji, naše moćne domaće jevrejske organizacije su nam omogućile, među inim, izlete. Šest puta godišnje, svake godine. Po principu "upoznaj svoju domovinu daje više volis" malo je ostalo dvoraca, parkova, vila, muzeja, katedrala, rimskih iskopina i objekata, spomenika raznim piratima i razbojnici u krugu od 150 km oko Londona, koje nismo posjetili. I javnih kuća. Ne, nije zabuna niti smo mi tako razlučeni – PUB je skraćenica od engleskog Public House, ja samo prevodim, ipak malo bukvalom. Kad ispričamo mještanim gdje smo sve bili, zjenice se rašire u nevjerici. Cjelog svog života su tu a nisu bili ni u trećini mjesta koje spomenemo. Uporno tvrdim da nije sve tako crno kada si izbjeglica, pod uslovom da si u Jevrey i pod uslovom da si u Engleskoj. Da potkrijepim Hoze Kareras je tada bio u čuvenom triumviratu naj-tenor na svijetu. Nas 23 izbjeglice smo upijali ljepote zvuka u elitnom Royal Albert Hall-u. Mufet, a nominalna cijena karata je bila £ 60. Malo ko autohtoni je mogao sebi priuštiti doživljaj a još manji broj doći do karata. Ko zna možda prosječan Englez ne može da klasificira muziku, a prosječan izbjeglica možda da.

Kada se govori o ljudima istog porijekla neminovno se formira uopštena slikazajedničkih karakteristika, skloni smo generalizaciji. A toliko smo različiti. Ima nas koji obilazimo muzeje, izložbe, predstave...ali ima nas i onih koji kažu, šta me briga za sve to, meni je Sainsbury's-ua ugla.

A domovina, nostalgija? Restrikcije u kretanju, nametnute situacijom u kojoj smo se našli, vremenom su nestajali i polako, osim u mislima, i fizički smo se počeli vraćati svom Sarajevu, Mostaru...nešto zbog zadovoljenja unutrašnje potrebe, a nešto poslom. Hrana, jelo i piće, nisam toga bio svjestan prije, vrlo su moćna komponenta identitet-a. Ja obilazim Sarajevo i uveo sam ritual (kao što ritualno, svako jutro ovde u svom stanu pečem tursku kafu u dževzi a pijem iz fildžana); jedan dan idem na zeljanicu, drugi na čevapčiće kod Mrkve, Želje ili Hodžića, treći dan na tulumbu i bozu na Slatkom čošetu. I sad, kao trebalo bi da se vratim svom Sarajevu, bar na kratko. Ali, avaj, tog Sarajeva nema, zakovalo se negdje u moždanim vijugama, ali ga nema sada i tu. Sve više idem tamo da posjetim grob roditelja, rodbine, Miši i od lani Milana, dodu mao kao hodočašće. Sada Sarajevom tutnje neki novi klinici, Sarajevu koje više nema ulicu Vuka Karadžića, ali ima ulicu Asima Ferhatovića popularno zvanog "Sline". Sarajevu gradi novi identitet u kome mjesto za mene sve više blijeđi a još uvijek me vežu grobovi i pite.

Život ovaj, iz početka tako stran i zastrašujući, polako postaje naša svakodnevница. Završavamo škole, zapošljavamo se, penzionisemo, radamo se i umiremo. Polako se prilagodavamo. Neko bolje, neko lošije. Kada se lupa vremena izmakne na stoljeća i milenijume, vjerovatno neće nigdje ni u hronikama za istorijska proučavanja biti pomena o nekoj grupi ljudi sa dalekog Balkana koja se obrela u Engleskoj u zadnjoj deceniji dvadesetog stoljeća. Možda će negdje biti zabilježena drama raspada Jugoslavije i tragedija bratobilačkog rata, a mi? Mi smo samo beznačajna reverberacija, engleski jezik ima za to dobar izraz – side effect. No, šta ima veze, bar ne možemo, poslje svega, reći da nam je život bio dosadan.

LONDON MAZE

It so happened that I, together with my family, was among the first arrivals in London in January of the ominous year 1992, it also happened that I knew some English and as it happened that as such I fitted into the WJR intentions at the time. I was suitable for welcoming those, "my" people, who for whatever motivation or reasoning believed England to be a good solution for their temporary problems. When we say temporary, we usually think of things that would soon be over, don't we? We believe that soon enough we will pick up from where we stopped, from where we were cut off. Well it was over, for some more and for some less, but not as soon as expected and certainly not from where we stopped.

I am welcoming a group at Heathrow. They are due to arrive from Belgrade where they were temporarily sheltered by the Union of Jewish Communities of Yugoslavia (the one with the new meaning). I recognize them straight away, not personally because I never knew them. I recognize them by the way they act, by their body language, as the English would put it. They push the airport trolleys stuffed with hastily piled things which, for whatever reason they believed to be essential and look backwards. Yes, they are not looking for me, I am in front; they knew I was waiting, but they looked backwards, frightened. They can't yet believe that they have just crossed their Red Sea and the Sinai desert, that they have arrived to their Promised Land and that Pharaoh can do them no harm any more. They have just, belatedly because it is August, lived their own Pesach. And they still do not believe, the unbelievers.

This was the first of many groups and individuals that I would welcome at the airport and they all do the same, to the letter. For just a few months of common experience of the horrors, they acquired common characteristics, unmistakable for deciphering. Just half a year ago they were so different. One more proof. The Executive Director of WJR at the time had a meeting in Zagreb with two of our leaders, Ivica and Jacob. Although this was the first time for her to meet these two gentlemen, when they came along she recognized them that very moment. "The only two gentlemen who moved in the middle of Zagreb with their backs against the wall", she explained.

I want to convey a small observation, which I do not really know where to thread in, so why not here and now? One of the questions revolving around my job at the time was the question of the importance of being Jewish in the circumstances the group was in. For example, a grandmother on father's side was Jewish from, say, Travnik. Well you see, I conducted a little un-formal test; I've asked my compatriots the meaning of this address in Sarajevo: Dobrovilačka 83? No reaction whatsoever! For your knowledge this was the former address of the Jewish Community in Sarajevo. Some were there for the first time in their lives taking off to exile. So what is my point? It is in the statement that one should not ask questions at the time when it is inappropriate. And none were asked neither there (in Sarajevo) nor here! This is my point. And my Jewish heart was as big as the world.

As an apprentice Social Worker, I was explained that sometimes irrational behaviour of

LIVE IN LONDON

There are now new kids on the block roaming around Sarajevo. The city where the street named after Vuk Karadžić is no more but there is a street named Asim Ferhatović, a.k.a. "Sline" ("Running nose"). Sarajevo is building a new identity wherein a place for me is fading away rapidly and the link shifts to cemeteries and pies.

This life, initially so strange and frightening, slowly becomes our daily routine. We graduate from schools, we get employment, we retire, we give birth and we die. We adjust slowly. Some better, some not so well. When the magnifying glass of time shifts back to centuries and milleniums, it is most likely that there would be no mention of a group of people from the remote Balkans who found themselves in England in the last decade of the 20-th century, not even in the archives meant for history studies. It is a possible that somewhere a record would exist on the drama of the desintegration of Yugoslavia and the tragedy of fratricidal war, but what about us? We are only an insignificant reverberation. There is a lovely expression in English for this – a side effect. But who cares, after all we can't complain that our lives have been boring.

HRONIKA RADA KLUBA

Posljednji zabilježeni događaj u Salonoj Hronici dogadanju, u broju 38, bio je, da se podsjetimo 25. januara 2006., kada smo pogledali film "East is East". Pa da nastavimo.

Srijeda, 1. februar. Na programu su bile- palačinke. Sa orasima, raznim džemovima. Navalilo raje sa svih strana Londona.

Srijeda, 8. februara. Sa danom zakašnjenja obilježili smo dan zaljubljenih - Valentinovo. Ovađnji starosjedioci ga obilježavaju obavezno, zašto ne bismo i mi. Naši neumorni pregaoci potpomognuti nekadašnjim i sadašnjim TV SA radnicima, potrudili su se da naprave program sa sekvencama iz antologijskih ljubavnih filmova, sa svjećama, dekoracijom i naravno prigodom poezijom. Zubavljao nas je mali irski sastav sa njihovim folklorom muzikom, onda su nam za naš gušt zapjevali nekolicina članova bivšeg hora "Seljo" iz Sarajeva. Bilo je ugodno i zabavno.

Srijeda, 1. mart. Pogledali smo nekoliko zaista lijepih kreacija u glini i keramici naše prijateljice i poznanice Jelene Kaličin. Ovdje je stekla kvalifikaciju, požnjela već nekoliko priznanja, a izlagala je bogami i u odajama NJ. V. Kraljice Eizabeth II.

Nedelja, 5. mart. Promocija knjige "Preživjeli smo Drugi svjetski rat" našeg člana Cezara – Zadika Danona. U prostorijama Shalvatu okupilo se neobičajeno mnogo ljudi, naših članova, prijatelja, Cezinih poznanika i "zemljaka". Mostarsko veče. Prigodan govor, čitanje fragmenata iz knjige. U knjizi Cezar iz srca i na vrlo jednostavan način opisuje svoje... Uostalom imao još par knjiga na raspolažanju u Šalvati (£7), pa ko voli, nek' izvoli.

Srijeda, 8. mart. Prigodno, kupljeno je nekoliko karanfila, tek toliko da se ne kaže da smo zaboravili naše dame i njihov praznik.

Srijeda, 15. mart. Sa malim zakašnjenjem obilježili smo Purim U današnje vrijeme to je uglavnom praznik za djecu, i ovom prilikom mame, tate bake i ko zna ko još ne, su se pokazali pravi majstori u pravljenju maski i kostima za djecu i unuke. Bilo je iča i piča i zabave.

Srijeda, 12. april. Pesah - prva Seder večera. Ovo je treća godina kako obilježavamo jedan od najsvetijih jevrejskih praznika. Uz prigodnu ceremoniju i meni, večera je imala svečani karakter, a 22 prisutnih nije mali broj za naše prilike.

Srijeda, 26. april. Konac dijelo kras. Aprilski program smo završili sa koncertom Ivane Gavrić - klavir i Helene Paskins – clarinet. Simpatični mladi duo vrlo uspješno nam se predstavio sa nekoliko dijela klasične muzike, da bi završili skupu sa auditorijumom "Adio kerida", koja pjesma je postala himnom za Jevreje Sefarde izbjegle iz Španije i koji su našli svoju ognjišta na tlu današnje BiH.

Srijeda, 17. maj. Nabavili smo veliki projektor i video i DVD i TV, pa nije bilo razloga i da ne pogledamo prenos Arsenal – Barcelona, za kup šampiona i to na velikom ekranu.

Srijeda, 21. juni. Opet jedna projekcija. Ovoga puta film – "Orlovi rano lete", po romanu besmrtnog Branka Ćopića. Poslje svega što se oko bivše nam Juge izdrgadalio, a i sa mnogima od nas, djelo je u nama poprimilo nove forme kritičnog posmatranja. Ipak se nismo mogli oduprijeti neuništivo smješnim Čkaljinim gegovima, diviti se Ljubiši Samardžiću u ulozi slavnog partizanskog borca Nikoletine Bursaća i drugih već pomalo zaboravljenih glumaca iz tadašnje plejade.

Srijeda, 28. juni. Održano je već tradicionalno sijelo uz obavezne pite - tvorevine ženske sekcije (Paja, Irena...) ja ko bi drugi i pićene (light) dakako. Okupilo nas se dvadesetak a možda i više. Zapjevac je i ostatak "Selje" - na zemlji, ogrank na London plus jedno pojačanje iz Toronto. Prvi put poslijе dvadesetak godina zapjevalo se kao nekad. Neki efekat se nije mogao ni očekivati, za taj repertoar treba najmanje dvadeset ljudi, ali je to došlo kao pravo osvjećenje za ono malo slušalaca, da čuju nešto "novo" (iako su većina autora izvedenih kompozicija još iz srednjeg vijeka). A nije ispalo ni loše, dobro čak. Poslje toga ushićenje i dernek, ostalo se čak do 11 uveče. Oni koji nisu došli, mogu malo i zažaliti; ostali su uskaračeni za jedan osebujan i neobičajan ugodaj.

Juli je predviđen za ljetne odmore, a i da se malo odmorimo jedni od drugih.

Cetvrtak 3. avgust. Uz malu svečanost otvorili smo za upotrebu nove prostorije u Šalvati. Da se ne prekine tradiciju upriličena je kratka prigodna govorancija, simbolično presjecanje trake, zdravstva. Pogledali smo nekoliko fotografija iz dosadašnje aktivnosti izloženih na panou i, nešto pokretnih slika iz prošlosti.

I eto, to je to. Nadajmo se da ćemo u novim prostorijama imati bolje uslove, raznovrsniji program i privući više članova na okup.

POSITIVE ASSESSMENT OF THE ACTIVITIES OF THE JEWISH COMMUNITY

This year, the Annual General Meeting of the Jewish Community in Sarajevo took place in May. Following the regulations the Presidency came out with a report on last year's activities of the Presidency of the entire Community and of the Jewish Cultural, Educational and Humanitarian Society "La Benevolencija". The members judged the results of the past period absolutely satisfactory so that the activities of the previous Presidency were passed positively.

It is important to remind everyone that a discrepancy still exists between the intentions and activities on the one hand and the financial potential on the other. Sadly, money has always been and will be, it seems, the limiting factor to our activities. Therefore, our plans for the future would be tailored in accordance with the realistic financial potential of the Jewish Community and the Society as a whole.

We are trying to maintain a very important field of our activities, i.e. care for the elderly and the sick members of our Community. The donations however, are rapidly drying out, so that we had to cut down the number of both the beneficiaries and of the carers by 40%. This fact does not make us happy, in fact we are worried about the attitude of the donors. They do not seem to understand the humanity of the care we provide. To be frank, they seem to gradually become weary of Sarajevo and Bosnia and Herzegovina. A decade or so has passed from the end of the war and it is high time to try and find local sources of finance. These will not be available in this country for years to come which is very discouraging.

It seems to me that our efforts to show that we are book loving people absorbed in culture bears fruit, so that although small in number, we are adequately represented in the wider community.

We make our presence felt daily and we would not let the roots of Jewish life in this space fade away.

Finally with the new Presidency and the efforts and participation of all the members of the Community, we are to try and do even more than objectively possible. To do this we'll need all the support, not just financial but also in kind, from the members and from our "Diaspora".

For the sake of informing our former members, the people we love and whom the winds have scattered all over the world we end this report notifying that the newly elected President of the Community is Boris-Bobo Kožemjakin and the new Vice President is Dragica Levi.

KOMUNALNE VIJESTI

Sa zadovoljstvom obavještavamo čitaocu da je Zajednica od 02.08.2006 počela sa okupljanjem i radom u lijepim prostorijama HSC sa adresom Parson Street/Corner of Church Road, London NW4 1QA. Ova promjena je značajna jer je prostor mnogo prijatniji i pruža veće mogućnosti. Važno je napomenuti da vlasnik prostora, Jewish Care, nije postavio nikakva vremenska ograničenja, što znači da se može u miru raditi bez pritiska.

Redakcija čestita Leonu Danonu uspjesnu odbranu doktorske teze iz fizike pod naslovom "Komunalne strukture u kompleksnim mrežama". Tezu je odbranio 27.07 ove godine na Barcelonskom univerzitetu. Leon planira nastaviti rad u naučnom istraživanju.

Danas su članovi "Prijatelja La Benevolencije" raspoređeni na 55 adresa. Možda vas zanima slijedeće: 25% je u Hendon-u; 21% u Golders Green-u; 11% u Finchley-u; 6% u Kilburnu; po 4% u Edgware-u, Stanmore-u, Westminster-u, Highgate-u i Kensingtonu i 28% u raznim drugim kvartovima, grofovijama i gradovima. Ne ponašamo se ništa drukcije od ostalih doseljenika, koncentrišemo se tamo gdje su naši.

OBRATITE PAŽNJU, OVO JE 40. BROJ SaLona !!! - PAY ATTENTION, THIS IS THE 40th ISSUE OF SaLON !!!
